RECYCLING CENTER NOW OPEN IN WAVELAND

City working on curbside recycling proposal

The city of Waveland on Friday unveiled its new recycling center, located behind city hall on Coleman Avenue.

"It's paid for by the Solid Waste Authority, which the city pays into," Waveland Mayor Mike Smith said. "The contract allows for collection sites."

Recently, Smith said, the city has received a lot of requests for curbside recycling.

"We haven't yet determined just how many residents want it," he said. "Right now, it would cost about $3.76 per residential structure."

A group of residents is currently working on a curbside recycling proposal, he added.

Smith said the center's location will make it easier for people to recycle.

The area is also under surveillance so people will be discouraged from dropping off non-recyclables, Smith said.

The area will be closely watched, he added.

"This will help those looking to recycle, until we can get a good gauge of citizens interested in curbside recycling," he said. "Its a good

Cast members from the Beau Rivage Casino on Thursday presented the Hancock County Food Pantry with a $10,000 check from the MGM Resorts Foundation.

Hancock County Food Pantry treasurer said John Wittliff said the foundation has been "very faithful with a grant every year since 2006."

"They've been with us the longest," he said.

At the March 5 Hancock County Board of Supervisors meeting, Wittliff presented a report on the pantry, which has been in operation for 32 years and is a state-chartered 501(c)(3) non-profit organization.

The county supports the pantry by paying the building's utilities, dumpster costs, pest control and telephone, he said. The pantry pays for liability insurance and has been located at Highway 603 since 2009.

The pantry also relies on grant funding and financial support from the community, Wittliff said.

Since 1986, the pantry has provided free food and personal hygiene products to more than 273,000 individuals and more than 114,000 families, Wittliff

Bay father & son's work on display at the Mary C.

BY GEOFF BELCHER
NEWS EDITOR

The works of a Bay St. Louis father and son are on display in a unique exhibit at the Mary C. O'Keefe Cultural Center's Duckett Gallery in Ocean Springs.

Forty-four of the late Laurent Sherry Smith's Southern landscapes are on display in the exhibit, as well as several framed poems written by his son, Gary Spencer Smith, who still lives in the family home in Bay St. Louis.

Laurent Smith "created his exquisite Southern landscapes with an unbridled passion for rural settings," Spencer said. "He portrayed fields, old barns and bayou scenes with deep colors, often with intricate detail. Light dances between the trees, buildings and other subjects, casting alluring shadows. Transitions from foregrounds to backgrounds exemplify flawless perspective. Skies are often dramatic, with clouds layered to impart a sense of dimension."

Born in 1908 in upstate New York, Laurent S. Smith was the product of parents who moved frequently. His father was in the construction business, building dams and office buildings all across the U.S., Mexico and South America. Though blessed with a brilliant and creative mind, Laurent's hopes for a higher education were dashed while he was still in his early teens: He had to drop out of high school to work to support the family.

However, Spencer said, "Gifted with a natural ability to sketch and a precise sense of composition, he studied art independently."

Although he worked as an engineer and draftsman for nearly 40 years, most people in Bay St. Louis knew Laurent for his highly-detailed, photographic-quality oil paintings. Though he could paint portraits that would make an Old Master jealous, in his peak years during the 1970s and '80s, Laurent produced more than a hundred southern landscapes. His subjects included local landmarks like the old L&N Train Depot, Bay St. Louis City Hall and the Hancock County Courthouse, as well as New Orleans neighborhoods and locations from all across the southern U.S.

Although prolific, the reclusive Laurent sought no attention and sold very few of his paintings.

In a 1996 interview, the then 86-year-old told reporters he was not a creative artist: "I'm an illustrator. I try to paint as realistically as possible without jazzing it up."

And he did it for his own enjoyment and enlightenment, until his death on Jan. 5, 2003, at the age of 94.

The younger Smith has earned laurels of his own as a poet, journalist, historian, and keeper of his father's legacy.

Spencer rescued hundreds of Laurent's paintings during Hurricane Katrina, and curated them for future generations.

His story has been documented in various media all across the Gulf South.

The Smiths' "Southern Landscapes" exhibit will be on display at the Mary C. O'Keefe Cultural Center from now through June 9.

Notice and Public Explanation of a Proposed Activity in a 100-Year Floodplain and Wetlands

Publication Date: April 28, 2018
To: All Interested Agencies, Groups, and Individuals

This is to give notice that the Hancock County Board of Supervisors proposes to contract with the Mississippi Department of Transportation to install traffic signalization at the intersection of State Route 43 and Kiln-Waveland Cut Off Road, which lies within a floodplain, and is part of a larger project.

This notice is required by Section 2(a)(4) of Executive Order 11988 for Floodplain Management, and by Section 2(b) of Executive Order 11990 for the Protection of Wetlands, and is implemented by HUD Regulations found at 24 CFR 55.20(b) for the HUD action that is within and/or affects a floodplain or wetland.

Per the Federal Emergency Management Agency's (FEMA's) Flood Insurance Rate Map number 28045C0333D effective October 16, 2009, portions of this project do lie within a Special Flood Hazard Area. Flood hazard areas identified on the Flood Insurance Rate Map are identified as a Special Flood Hazard Area (SFHA). SFHA are defined as the area that will be inundated by the flood event having a 1-percent chance of being equaled or exceeded in any given year. The 1-percent annual chance flood is also referred to as the base flood or 100-year flood. No wetlands will be impacted by this project

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has determined that it has no practicable alternative other than to approve the proposed location of the project. Best Management Practices will be used during construction to prevent sedimentation, erosion and water quality impacts. All necessary federal, state and local permits will be acquired prior to beginning construction, and the appropriate precautionary steps will be taken to prevent any impacts to the floodplain or wetlands.

Additional information including a more detailed project description and map are on file at the Hancock County Board of Supervisors office and are available for public inspection during regular business hours: Monday through Friday; 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. Please contact Maureen Anderson, County Grant Administrator, 854 Highway 90, Suite A, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520 or by calling 228-467-0172.

Creoles, the intersection of many peoples

Growing up as little people, my siblings and I, as well as our relatives, friends and neighbors, sponged up everything around us, unaware that a Creole culture was the atmosphere and environment that we lived, breathed and ingested constantly. It was our father who spoke Cajun, the old French from Canada, and our mother who spoke Creole, the oft-fractured French so dear to all who are part of that culture. A many-splendored culture, it has purloined gems of all kinds from other cultures, in the process of creating its own distinctive jewels unlike any in the world. From rich goodness and talent in every walk of life, we are a flavorful gumbo appetizing to all.

With an incredible length and breadth, Creoles span all the color spectrum from deep ebony to dark chocolate to milk chocolate to teasing tan to the ambiguous ivory-complected to sepia to the reddish briqué to high yellow to white. Technically, black is not a color, for it is the absence of visible light. Neither is white a color, for it contains all the wavelengths of visible light. So what is this black/white fuss all about? In any case, most of us are of Afro-Euro-Asian (First American) extraction – quite a bit in addition to what we usually call African American.

Seizing upon these broad-based commonalities, confessed Creole Georgina Dhillon from the Seychelles, who later moved to London, had a dream to unite the formidable concentrations of Creoles: Antillean Creole, spoken among 100,000 in Dominica, “The nature isle of the Caribbean”; Antillean Creole, among 100,000 in Grenada; Antillean Creole, among 422,496 in Guadeloupe; French Guiana Creole and Haitian Creole, among 157,277 in French Guiana; Haitian Creole, among 7,000,000 in Haiti; Antillean Creole, among 381,441 in Martinique; Mauritian Creole, among 1,100,000 in Mauritius; Réunion Creole, among 707,758 in Réunion; Antillean Creole, among 150,000 in St. Lucia; Antillean Creole, among 56,000 in St. Thomas; Seychelles Creole, among 70,000 in Seychelles; Antillean Creole, among 1,300,000 in Trinidad; a few Creole dialects, among 4,000,000 in Acadia, New Orleans, New Roads/False River and Cane River in Louisiana; Creole, among some thousands in several pockets of Creoles along the Texas–Mississippi–Alabama–Florida Gulf Coast, and a Miami Little Haiti neighborhood.

From all this, it is not surprising why we can say that, beyond all other ethnicgroups, Creoles are the main intersection for the numerous families of peoples around the globe – a phenomenon that we see unfolding before our very eyes.

After many painstaking, birthing months of research, imagination and trial and error, Georgina is

Wicker Votes to Confirm Mike Pompeo, Reform Senate Rules

Senate Narrowly Approves President Trump’s Nominee for Secretary of State

Until recently, the confirmation of highly qualified nominees to the President’s Cabinet usually proceeded with broad bipartisan support. This tradition should have been extended to the confirmation of Mike Pompeo, President Trump’s nominee to be secretary of state.

The Senate ultimately confirmed Mr. Pompeo to the Cabinet post, but the narrow vote of 57 to 42 for such an accomplished nominee is disappointing. The former CIA director has a sterling record of achievement as a West Point graduate, Harvard Law graduate, Army captain, and member of the House of Representatives. He has been widely backed by newspaper editorial boards, and more than a dozen Democrats voted to make him CIA director last year.

Delays Could Create Nine-Year Nomination Backlog

I regret that Secretary Pompeo’s confirmation did not mark a return to the cooperation once shown in the Senate for executive and judicial nominees. The

by Roger Wicker
U.S. SENATOR

Senate Democratic Leader has made delay tactics the norm rather than the exception for routine confirmation processes. President Trump has had to wait 85 days on average for his nominees to be confirmed, much longer than his predecessors.

These unnecessary delays have become so incessant that it could take the Senate nine years to fill the remaining executive and judicial vacancies. This stunning claim by the President recently earned the rare Geppetto Checkmark by the Washington Post’s Fact Checker column for its accuracy. The column breaks down the math: If Democrats were to demand the maximum debate time for the President Trump’s remaining 1,122 nominees, the Senate would be confirming them until 2027.

Most Americans agree that the President should be able to choose his closest advisors – a courtesy that seems especially appropriate when it comes to his national security team. The secretaries of state who served during the Obama Administration received near unanimous support, and I am disappointed that Secretary Pompeo was not shown the same unity. All politics aside, this was a crucial opportunity for the Senate to send a strong signal to the rest of the world, reaffirming its confidence in Secretary Pompeo’s leadership amid emerging challenges and threats.

Senate Committee Approves Rule Change for Nominees

To help resolve the current backlog of nominations, I cosponsored a Senate resolution that would permanently shorten the debate time on certain nominees. I then voted in favor of it as a member of the Senate Rules Committee, which passed the resolution. All of the committee’s Democrats opposed the resolution, despite it being the same rule change introduced by former Democratic Leader Harry Reid and adopted on a temporary basis in 2013 to confirm President Obama’s nominees.

Under the proposed new rules, district judges and executive positions below the Cabinet level would no longer be subject to the maximum 30 hours of debate time. Moreover, these nominations would no longer prevent the Senate from turning to other pressing legislative issues in need of consideration. There is too much to do for our work to be sidelined by procedural maneuvers. I hope this rule change will soon be adopted by the full Senate.

Decrepit roads illustrate weakness with democracy

When the state legislature voted 30 years ago to vastly improve Mississippi’s highways, they passed an 18 cent gas tax. It was the most logical way to fund the program.

As a result, Mississippi has had some of the best roads in the nation, a boon for economic development and public safety and convenience.

But the legislature made one fatal flaw: They didn’t index the tax for inflation. After 30 years, inflation has cut the real amount of the original gas tax in half.

At 18.4 cents per gallon, Mississippi has the

GUEST OPINION

by Wyatt Emmerich
Publisher/Northside Sun

lowest gas tax of any of our neighboring states and the 46th lowest in the nation, according to the Tax Foundation. Pennsylvania, with the nation’s highest gas tax, levies 58 cents per gallon.

As our roads deteriorate, the crisis is coming to a head. Earlier this year, the federal government shut down 100 bridges. Now the feds are threatening to cut off money to Mississippi if something is not done.

Gov. Phil Bryant has proposed a lottery. That’s a terrible idea. Lotteries hurt low income households that can least afford it. It’s state-supported gambling, a moral abomination.

Lt. Gov. Tate Reeves

proposed a bandaid approach that would not even come close to the $350 million needed. His plan would take authority away from the Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT) and give power to the governor, a position Reeves hopes to fill.

Now Speaker of the House Philip Gunn has made a proposal to raise the gas tax two cents, not nearly enough, and then reallocate existing use tax money to the MDOT. He simultaneously plans to eliminate the lowest bracket of the state income tax so he can claim he did not raise overall taxes.

Roads

All three major state leaders are bending over backwards not to raise taxes, but there is simply no way to properly maintain our roads without doing so.

The federal government has no room to point fingers. The federal gas tax hasn't been adjusted for inflation in 23 years. The federal interstate system is also crumbling as a result.

The real problem here is a fundamental flaw in democracy. Voters don't want to raise taxes and will boot out politicians who do. Politicians don't want to get booted out, so they kick the can down the road.

But roads are apolitical. They will deteriorate regardless of which way the political winds may blow. It's just a matter of time.

The nature of road maintenance compounds this problem. Roads can last for many years without maintenance, making it easy for politicians to kick the can down the road. But sooner or later, the lack of maintenance becomes obvious.

By that time, it's too late. An expensive proposition becomes an enormous deferred liability. A road, if maintained properly, can last for 30 years and be rebuilt for a reasonable cost. But rebuilding a road that hasn't been maintained can cost three or more times more money – a veritable disaster. And that's where we are.

Voters, who generally detest taxes, think the roads are just fine until they collapse, causing motorists to pay huge amounts to repair tires, rims, shocks, struts and, ultimately, a total front end rebuilt costing thousands. At that point, the proverbial material has hit the fan.

Republicans often like to extoll the free market and compare its benefits to the governmental tax-and-spend model. But in the free market, this sad situation would never occur.

Companies that fail to maintain their assets fail. Customers turn away in droves. Just imagine a hotel that allowed its infrastructure to crumble. Customers would flock to the new nice hotel.

Airlines must maintain their airplanes, otherwise accidents occur and nobody would buy their tickets.

My newspaper company over the years has been forced to spend millions to maintain our printing equipment. Nobody will read an ugly, inky paper. It's not money I wanted to spend. I had to do it. The free market made me.

Any homeowner knows this. You can fail to maintain your roof, but if you do your home value will decline and you could never sell your house. You would also risk further structural damage caused by moisture. So you suck it up and maintain your roof.

These free market forces unfortunately do not work with road maintenance. Politicians come and go and can leave the problem for the next office holder. Motorists have few options. They can take another route, but that adds time and time is money. And sooner or later all the roads on all the routes will go bad.

Now we have a crisis. For the state of Mississippi, bridge closures and angry voters are a reality. Now the loss of federal funds adds fuel to the fire.

My job is to explain what's going on in the hope of turning the tide of public opinion which will eventually manifest itself at the ballot box. Change will happen, but at a rate that will make the price tag billions more than would have been necessary if we had state leaders instead of state politicians.

Mississippi's one-party domination doesn't help matters. Politicians follow the standard play book, which means never raise taxes under any circumstance. You can't run a state that way.

Anti-tax political groups don't help matters. There are some very powerful political action committees and political non-profit organizations that will hurt politicians who raise taxes. No politician wants to get on the wrong side of those people.

I have always disliked ideology because it is often taken to extreme. You simply cannot properly run the government if you take the position that taxes can never be raised under any circumstances. It just won't work.

No doubt government is wasteful and spends too much. It has always been so. That is the nature of the beast. That's why I prefer free market solutions. Perhaps we are headed to a system of toll roads run by for-profit businesses. Now that would truly be an enormous expense.

Throughout this debate, nobody has disputed the maintenance needs specified by MDOT. It is what it is. Road maintenance costs are fairly straightforward to compute.

The simplest solution is to index the gas tax and get it to a point so we can properly maintain our roads to minimize the long-range cost. But that would require our state leaders to get off the no-tax-increase-under-any-circumstance ideological rocking horse. I see no sign of that happening.

As Winston Churchill once said: Democracy is the worst form of government except for all the others. We are seeing the truth of those words.

International. With a video presentation in the background, Mayor Purvis Morrison spoke of some of his favorite things about Scott and Kreol International. Professor Aaron Harris quickly made us appreciate how one could rise from a plantation to being a distinguished professor. Donny Vallot represented his family well. Likewise, Joseph "T-Jo" Sigue did the Jeanerette Mardi Grass Crew proud. Beauty queens Melissa Anderson and Jackie Marks got everybody's attention. Dr. Marcus Jones, Vice President of Northwestern State University, Natchitoches, made strong connections between his university and the mission of Kreol International. enjoying the initial fruits of all her efforts through her Kreol International, a magazine that she created, edits and publishes. In advertisement and celebration of this magazine, Georgina organized a magazine signing that took place on April 20 in Scott, Louisiana, "The Boudin Capital of the World." Only 5.1 miles west of Lafayette, Scott had held its annual Boudin Festival two weeks before.

For the magazine signing, we convened in a large meeting area set back to the south and 100 feet distant from Don's Specialty Meats. A sizable building with a couple of large TV screens and a dozen or so round tables with seats, it was wide open, courtesy of cool, pleasant weather. On a long table, Georgina had several issues of her Kreol International Magazine, featuring Scott's Mayor Purvis Morrison and his wife Mary, Professor Aaron Harris, the Vallot Family story, beauty queen Jackie Marks and Jean Faure. Pens were laid at the ready for magazine signings.

Eventually, it was time to move to the C'est Bon meeting room adjacent to the main section of the store. With chairs and tables accommodating some sixty of us, a program was kicked off with a welcome by MC Jerrod Guillory, a professional comedian. Remarks and a blessing by Yours Truly preceded words from host Georgina Dhillon who gave the historical background of Kreol

Such written comments received prior to May 15, 2018, will be considered by the County and the County will not request the release of funds or take administrative action on the within named project prior to the preceding date specified.

The County will undertake the project described above with grant funds from the Community Development Block Grant Program. The County is certifying to the State that Blaine LaFontaine in his capacity as President of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors consents to accept the jurisdiction of the federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental reviews, and that these responsibilities have been satisfied under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, as amended.

Miller, Mississippi Development Authority, Post Office Box 849, Jackson, Mississippi 39205-0849.

For the second year in a row, Wittliff told the supervisors, the pantry has been operating on a deficit.

This year, the pantry had to adjust the amount of food given to families. However, there has also been an increase in the number of families seeking help, he added.

The pantry screens applicants using guidelines established by the Mississippi Department of Human Services, Wittliff said. Families have to certify that their income is below poverty level and show proof of residency, he added. The pantry — which is the only full-time food pantry in Hancock County — is run entirely by volunteers and is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon, except holidays.

"More than 100 volunteers staff the food distribution warehouse and client intake officers," Wittliff said. "Over 90 percent of all funds spent are used to buy food to give away to those in need."

SPORTS

SSC introduces new sport to campus

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
STAFF WRITER

The Saint Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws have started play with a new sport on campus this spring. The Rocks have inaugurated a lacrosse team.

We have all seen lacrosse played on TV but we may dismiss it because it is not a popular sport in Mississippi. In fact, the Rocks are just the third team in Mississippi to field a team following the Ocean Springs Greyhounds and Pascagoula Panthers.

The sport is being coached by Brian Murphy who serves as the school's Director of Advancement. Murphy played lacrosse in high school at Chaminade on Long Island and collegiately at Saint Mary's College in California.

Murphy stated, "This inaugural team is dynamic. It is all about dedication and striving to learn something new and these guys have proved this beyond expectation."

Three months ago, Saint Stanislaus lacrosse was just a mere thought. These two teams have turned it into reality with a very bright future. I think the biggest hurdle has been learning the fundamentals. It can get frustrating but it is a healthy frustration. Our biggest strength is that the team has an abundance of natural athletic ability."

The game of lacrosse is very similar to the sports of hockey and soccer in philosophy and sometimes terminology with basketball and football thrown into the mix.

Lacrosse started in North America several hundred years ago by the Indians as a training mechanism for battle. It was called 'Baggataway'.

In fact, in 1867 Canada named lacrosse as the national sport not hockey.

There are four quarters of 10-15 minutes depending on age level with a 10-minute half time. There are two teams of 10-members each including a goalkeeper, three defenders, three midfielders and three attackers.

Each period begins with a 'face off' and the teams switch sides each period. The teams are allowed two time outs per half and substitution can occur at any time.

The sport is played with sticks with a net at the end that allows the player to control the ball in the net. Each player also hands gloves, shoulder pads and a helmet for protection.

There are several types of 'checking' like hockey including body, stick, poke, slap and wrap.

Any foul results in the fouling player spending suspension time for a designated length. Five fouls by a player results in game suspension.

The goalkeeper and the defenders protect the goal. The goalkeeper can only use his/her hands to block shots. They cannot use their hands to control the ball, they also have a stick for that.

The midfielders are the primary handlers on the team and move the ball into the opponents area for attacks at the goal. The attackers are usually the best stick handlers on the team.

The dimensions of the field are 60 yards wide by 110 yards long.

Each goal counts as a point when the ball crosses the plane into the net. The teams will play sudden death overtime to decide a winner if regulation time ends in a tie.

The sport sounds eerily similar to hockey and soccer, right.

Sometimes hockey is referred to as lacrosse on ice. However, the new sport is making waves and the first glimpse of it can be found at the Brother Phillip Memorial Athletic Complex.

The Rocks host Ocean Springs and Northshore today for games at 11am and 12:30pm. They will also host Brother Martin for two games on Friday, May 4th at 4pm and 5:30pm.

See you at the newest game on the block!

Area hits homestretch of athletics with spring sport playoffs

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II

The area is in the final stretch of the 2017-18 school year and athletics is winding down with it.

The only sports still left in action for the area are baseball, tennis, golf and track and field.

The tennis team playoffs are currently in progress. The Rocks were defeated in the second round by West Lauderdale last week.

The individual state tennis tournament will take place immediately following the team championships on May 7-9.

The Class 4A state tennis tournament will be held at FNC Tennis Complex in Oxford. Preston Bang of Pass Christian will compete in Class 4A boys singles while Karime Alonso of Bay High and Alejandra Rodriguez of Pass Christian will play in Class 4A girls singles.

Jackson Thriffiley and Kaleb Allen of SSC will play in Class 4A boys doubles along with Nour Tayara/Walker of SSC.

The Bay Waveland Yacht Club (BWYC) celebrated its Annual Review of the Fleet last Sunday, April 22, 2018. This event designates the opening of the sailing season at BWYC for the year. Although inclement weather curtailed the club's annual boat review, club members participated in special ceremonies and celebrated with a jazz brunch afterwards.

This gala event was reminiscent of a similar party held back in 1897 in the grand ballroom of the first BWYC clubhouse. During the "gay nineties" the annual regatta in Bay St. Louis was an event eagerly looked forward to from year to year during which our village was crowded with able and enthusiastic yachtsmen. The Mobile Yacht Club and the celebrated Southern Yacht Club of New Orleans would send entries to this grand event. The flower of Southern womanhood was always well represented. For a few days before the regatta, ladies of the Coast were adorned with the flying colors of their favorite sailor. The day of the race was a gala one at the Bay, after which followed champagne suppers aboard yachts, followed by a grand ball or party at the Yacht Club.

It is enjoyable to read in the "Gossip of the Bay" column of the Sea Coast Echo the flowery language characteristic of that era in the description of that abovementioned party in 1897 that our great grandparents attended. "An audience taxing the utmost capacity of the upper floor of the clubhouse assembled on a Saturday night. A finer gathering would be hard to find. Professor Grisol's Orchestra successfully provided music that was exceedingly well rendered evidenced by frequent applause. The refreshment booths were attractively decorated in a most tasteful manner, but nothing was more enhancing than the presence of that feminine loveliness that presided enchanting the thirsty and lover of good things. Dancing was kept up until a late hour."

The BWYC was founded in 1896. The clubhouse was built in 1897 and was located near what was considered the center of town at that time at the foot of Washington Street. The clubhouse extended out over the water of the Mississippi Sound and was connected to the shore by a 1,100 foot pier. The building was a "grandstand" two-story wood frame structure surrounded by a railed porch constructed at a cost of $2,500. The clubhouse was considered handsome, well-equipped, and the prettiest yacht club in the South.

The BWYC continued to grow and was expected to be an agency to bring many people to Bay St. Louis and Waveland which would certainly increase the prosperity of our summer resort.

The population of the Bay was approximately 2,500 souls in that time frame. The club continued to grow until 1915. At that time a "West Indies Hurricane" destroyed the building. In 1916 the BWYC lapsed into inactivity until 1921. There have been four buildings that have served as the clubhouse of the BWYC over the last 122 years. The first two clubhouses were located at the end of Washington Street. The third and fourth, or present day clubhouse, were located in Cedar Point at the site of the Old Peerless Cannery facing the Bay of St. Louis.

Sailing has been an integral feature of the character/culture of Bay St. Louis and Waveland for over 300 years. Our local mariners have plied the seas to fish for shrimp, finfish, crabs, and oysters for profit.

There are no better seamen than American sailors. There are no better yachtsmen/yachtswomen than the mariners who race for the BWYC. May our sailors young and old on the Gulf Coast enjoy fair winds and following seas.

Magnolia Antiques in downtown Bay St. Louis proves the old adage that "everything old is new again."

"We're always buying, so inventory is always changing," store owner Glenda Schornick said this week.

"We don't focus on one particular thing," Schornick said. "We have something for everyone from every time period. It may not be all antique, but it's all vintage collectible."

Magnolia Antiques is a family affair. Glenda and her husband Jack opened the store in 2008, in the historic Jerome's Department Store building at 200 Main Street. In Magnolia Antiques also has the largest collection of ukuleles on the Coast, thanks to Jack's "habit."

Jack picked up the ukulele habit about seven years ago while on a road trip to California, he said.

"When I wasn't driving on the way back," he said, "I was practicing. ... The beautiful thing about the ukulele is, if you learn six chords, you can play about a thousand songs right away."

Three years ago, at the age of 39, Dana Hebert walked through the doors of Our Lady Academy (OLA) hoping to be able to register as a first-time student. "I want to wear the uniform and be a true Crescent," she said. A week later, with her assistant by her side, Dana came through the halls proudly wearing the OLA plaid skirt and ready to get to work. This was her first step to reaching her dream and her first time to attend an all-girl school. Dana's day began in the ICT Lab, learning how to type; followed by Art class with Mrs. Karli Renz Corr. She came every week and grew to love OLA, her new friends, and her new teachers.

On March 21, 2018, Dana walked in her Art class with a bag full of "Crazy Socks" in tow. She planned to share this national day of celebration with the girls that became her friends, the girls that laughed with her and grew with her ...it was her day... the day that was designated as "World Down Syndrome Day." The United Nations chose March 21 for the world to recognize all the unique and wonderful people with Down Syndrome because the cause of this condition is a random error in cell division that results in the presence of an extra copy of chromosome 21. The "Crazy Socks" represent the shape of the extra chromosome.

When Dana decides that it is time for her to leave OLA and pursue her other dreams, she will be presented with an Honorary Certificate of Achievement from OLA, officially making her a Crescent! When that day comes, the students said that they will miss her laughter and her big smile but are happy that she learned how to type; how to express herself through art, but it was really Dana that taught them. To the OLA students, Dana defined perseverance, commitment, and the drive to fulfill one's dream and conquer any fears. Dana has touched the lives of many girls at OLA and they know that she became a part of OLA, a true Crescent, the moment she walked through the doors of Our Lady Academy.

All things local

When it comes to knowing what's happening locally, the community newspaper is the primary source, according to respondents in a nationwide survey. The community newspaper beats TV, radio and the internet as the No. 1 source for local news as well as local shopping and advertising information.

every Wednesday at St. Rose de Lima.

While the ukulele collection features both new and old instruments, Shay says, "everything else is vintage," including a huge cache of vinyl records.

"Our vinyl selection is really good," she said. In fact, Magnolia Antiques' selection of just about everything is extensive.

"Magnolia Antiques is one of the most interesting stores in Bay St. Louis," according to one recent Yelp reviewer. "No matter how many times I visit, I always find something different."

After several paragraphs describing the furniture, musical items, dolls, glassware, and watches, "John L.H. from New Orleans" sums up his feelings: "I guess what I am trying to say is that this place pretty much has something for everyone. My description of some of these things doesn't come close to a full description of what they sell. Just check it out."

Magnolia Antiques, located at 200 Main Street in Old Town Bay St. Louis, is open daily from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. For more information, call 228-467-8170.

Girl Scout Earns Prestigious Medal of Honor

“It can be scary if someone is sick or hurt, especially during an emergency.”
Girl Scout Legacy First Aid Badge for Junior Girl Scouts, Grades 4 – 5.”

SEA COAST ECHO

Every Girl Scout is prepared to do heroic things. When a girl receives one of the national Meritorious Service Awards, she's being honored for doing something exceptional, such as saving someone's life.

When Hancock County Girl Scout Troop 3590 started working on the First Aid Badge last fall, Troop leader Jessica Bohacheff never dreamed that it would lead to her own daughter, Haven Bloom, receiving the Girl Scout Medal of Honor. This award is given to a Girl Scout who has shown presence of mind (a clear and calm head) and true Girl Scout spirit in an emergency.

On February 15th, Haven Bloom helped a classmate while she was having a seizure. While staff rushed for the school nurse, Haven put to action the skills she learned as a Girl Scout. She assisted her ailing friend by turning her on her side, bracing with a backpack, and keep-

On Saturday, April 21st, Haven Bloom was awarded the Girl Scout Medal of Honor at the annual Girl Award Ceremony at Girl Scout Camp Iti Kana, located in Wiggins, MS.

Girl Scouts began over 100 years ago with one woman, Girl Scouts' founder Juliette Gordon "Daisy" Low, who believed in the power of every girl.

She organized the first Girl Scout troop on March 12, 1912, in Savannah, Georgia, and every year since, we've made her vision a reality, helping girls discover their strengths, passions, and talents.

Today, according to a Girl Scouts release, "we continue the Girl Scout mission of building girls of courage, confidence, and character, who make the world a better place. We're the preeminent leadership development organization for girls. And with programs for girls from coast to coast and across the globe, Girl Scouts offers every girl a chance to do something amazing. To volunteer, reconnect, donate, or join, visit www.girlscouts.org, or go to www.GSGMS.org, or on Facebook at "Girl Scouts of Greater Mississippi," and on Instagram as "GSGMS."

Jemma is beautiful, high energy, two year old Pit bull Terrier mix, who loves playing in our doggie exercise yard with her pals here at the shelter. She loves to play with toys, too. She is friendly and playful with dogs her own size, but she cannot join a home with small dogs or cats. Jemma is strong, and is in need of additional leash training. We are unsure if she is crate or house trained yet. She does loves people, and is very affectionate. $However, due to her strength and energy level, she would be best suited to a home with adults, or a family with children 10 years or older. She would be an ideal BFF for an active teenager looking for a fun loving companion. If you are interested in Jemma, please stop by 7175 Texas Flat Rd, Kiln, and meet her. She is lots of fun! Call the shelter at 466 4516 for more information on Jemma, or visit our Facebook page, Hancock County Animal Shelter, MS, to see more pictures of Jemma, and of the many other wonderful, adoptable animals looking for their forever homes.

Bay High Senior Earns Scholarship from Local Attorney Brehm Bell

SEA COAST ECHO

Bay St. Louis, MS – Bay High senior Macey Barletter has been awarded the Brehm Bell Future Lawyers Scholarship for 2018. The scholarship, open to both public and private high school seniors in Hancock County, was initiated in 2016 to encourage those who are contemplating a career in law. An outside committee selected Barletter from the field of applicants based on her academics, character and written essay.

The Brehm Bell Future Lawyers Scholarship is a $1000 one-time award. Barletter will attend Brigham Young University-Idaho in the fall.

"I am humbled by this great honor and so grateful for the Brehm Bell Scholarship," said Barletter upon notification. "I know this will help me in pursuing my future goals."

In her submitted essay, Barletter wrote, "As an attorney, one has an opportunity to help people with their problems that need legal intervention. A lawyer has to empathize with the person in need of assistance in order to be able to access the problem and give the best solution."

Bay High teacher Franklin Williams, who wrote a letter of recommendation, noted that Macey has "displayed outstanding growth in her critical thinking and problem-solving skills." He continues that she "has also shown a natural insight into understanding her peers and has used that understanding to build successful professional relationships with her peers and faculty members."

A practicing attorney in downtown Bay St. Louis since 1995, Bell focuses his practice on personal injury cases and helping people who are overwhelmed or frustrated with the legal process.

Most Mississippians (87%) say keeping the public informed through public notices and legal advertising is an important requirement for government agencies. And the preferred method of receiving these notices is in a printed newspaper along with their associated websites.

LEAVING THIS WORLD WITH REGRETS

Have you ever heard anyone say that I have lived my life the way I wanted and have absolutely no regrets? If you have this must have been a very contented person and left no stone unturned. Most of the time when someone is on their death bed you will hear them say I wish I had taken more time to do... or I wish I had done so and so.

Life is short and many people have desires to do certain things but they are always putting them off until tomorrow. For many, tomorrow never comes and they leave this earth with unfilled dreams.

When my wife and I first married I was in the Air Force and stationed in Colorado Springs, CO. We had aspirations of snow skiing since neither of us had ever tried it before. Being in Colorado over the winter, ample opportunities came and went for us to ski however we kept putting it off and eventually we moved back to our home state. We did say that one day we would come back and visit this beautiful state again and snow ski but as fate would have it we haven't done this as of yet. Our dream of nearly 50 years ago hasn't been fulfilled and now I am much older and way out of physical condition to try this sport.

My regret of not skiing doesn't even compare to those that have past memories of something they are not proud of. My regret is not even close to someone who has or had problems with family, friends, or others and simply would not put aside their pride and go to these people to resolve the issues between them.

Many have unconfessed sin and are not willing to let go of worldly ways and confess these sins to God. For the ones of us that know Jesus as our Lord and Savior we are convicted by the Holy Spirit of these sins and all we have to do is go to our knees and ask forgiveness from the Lord. For those that have problems with people around us for something said that hurt us or them, we need to go to these people and make things right. Even if we are on the receiving end of the hurt, shame, or disagreement we can be the bigger person and approach the one that hurt us to correct the issue.

The prince of the earth, Satan, is always lurking around and will do anything to keep us from being happy in the Lord. One of the biggest ways he attacks us is through regret. Regret gets to us mentally and if we allow it to it will become a devastating monster. We have to keep it in check and we can do this by staying in God's Word and talking to God daily. We need to remember what 1 Peter 5:8 tells us; "Be sober-minded; be watchful. Your adversary, the devil, prowls around like a roaring lion, seeking someone to devour."

I hope that all of us are contented when we leave this earth. For me if I never go snow skiing so be it. I have had a wonderful life. For the ones that have unresolved problems with family or friends, go today and resolve it. For those that have unconfessed sins go to your knees and ask forgiveness from God. For those that are ashamed of things you did in your past, let it go, and remember that today is the first day of the rest of your life.

SEA COAST ECHO

The honorees are:

Senior Matti Dunn, the daughter of Cindy and George Dunn of Diamondhead.

Mattie's motto says it all: "I love the person I am because I fought to become her." She will continue her amazing climb to greatness at The University of Southern Mississippi in a dual major of art and English. She is already a part of both the Southern Miss Honor's College and Lucky Day programing.

Based on her involvement in Beta Club, where she is the state Language Arts Champion, the National Honor Society, the National French Honor Society, the National English Honor Society, and the Art Club, we know Matti has had some amazing teachers. For example, she describes Mrs. Amanda Pidgeon as being one of those caring teachers, who truly loves what she does and shows it every day. In turn, her nominating teachers describe Matti as an amazing student who is finding her stride and reaching her dreams.

Junior Trenton Ladner, the son of Wade and Mary Ladner of Poplarville, MS.

Trenton, like Tim Tebow believes "I don't know what my future holds, but I do know who holds my future." He does know that he wants to be the most positive person he can, every single day. He goes on to say this attitude is inspired by Coach Lollar, who Trenton describes as always smiling and always having a positive attitude. In high school, Trenton is involved in Hancock High School's Football, Beta, National Honor Society, Mu Alpha Theta, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, the National Honor Society, and the Renaissance Club. He plans to continue being so involved in academics and sports in college. As his teachers said, Trenton shows himself to be a "well-rounded student who is always respectful and considerate of others."

Sophomore Russell Frank, the son of Russell and Joanna Frank of Diamondhead.

Helpful, hardworking and a team player are how Russell's teacher describe this sophomore, which fits his moto in life "There may be people with more talent than you, but there is no excuse for anyone to out-work you," said by Derek Jeter. With the dream of playing college baseball, Russell currently plays Hancock High School baseball and football. He sees Coach Russum's positive vibe inspiring. Finally, Russell reminds us that his books come before his sports, because the student always comes before the athlete.

Freshman Carissa Garner, the daughter of Rebecca Garner of Kiln, MS.

Carissa loves helping others and being there for them, even when she has a lot going on in her own life. Her English teacher, Mrs. Heather Spengler is always reminding her to do the right thing, which has truly influenced Carissa in her decisions. As a future FBI Agent, this will serve Carissa well.

Coco-Cola STAR student of the month for February 2018

Hancock High is honored to present its Coco-Cola Start Student for February: Olivia Dosda, the daughter of Hancock High teachers Sarah and Jason Dosda of Diamondhead, MS.

Described as an honor's student who diligently works to maintain the A-B honor roll, as well as being a good student, Olivia's teachers' point out that she is a kind, young woman, and an amazing artist. In turn, she describes her most inspiring teacher as Mrs. Sarah Bailey because she is awesome and amazing. Currently, she is a member of the history and government clubs and enjoys volunteering in her free time.

Olivia's hard work and dedication has gained her acceptance into the Mississippi School for Math and Science next year. She plans to apply this motivation and dedication to the Peace Corps or pursuing her doctorate after high school. As Pippi Longstocking said, "I am the sea and no one owns me," which reminds us that her future is what she chooses to make it.
